EVIDENCE: "Golden Line" I saw, I read...	CLARIFY: I Think, To sum up...
"All sorts of conditions - for example, stagnant economies or ethnic polarization"	Some come from corruption or countries circumstances
"Problems created by the proliferation of semi-authoritarian regimes... should not be accepted or dismissed"	It creates a challenge for policy makers
"Semi-auth. regimes already do much of what the most widely used democratization projects encourage"	Liberalization doesn't always mean democratization
"Democracy is in the long-run interest of these countries, but it is definitely not in the short-term interest of the leaders"	It's hard to help countries democratize, because they don't know what makes democracy
